Patrick set for debut as IRL's lone woman

By Amy Rosewater, special for USA TODAY

AVONDALE, Ariz. — The night before Danica Patrick took her first spin in an Indy car, she barely slept. "I woke up about every 20 minutes," Patrick said. "I realized there's no joking anymore."

Danica Patrick has come under criticism from former women racers for her provocative photo shoots.

Danica Patrick

WHAT'S MOST impressive?
The fact that she's 23 and has already garnered a spot on the Rahal-Letterman Racing Team? The fact that she's doing things no woman has ever done on a racing oval, including becoming the first to lead an open-wheel championship (Toyota Atlantic) and scoring the highest finish ever for an American at the Formula Ford Festival in England? The fact that she is bringing hordes of new fans to the IRL with her crossover appeal (she hates country music, emulates Bobby Rahal and Lyn St. James and includes yoga in her training regimen)? Or the fact that she...well, that she looks like this?

What's the first thing you're attracted to in a guy?
Wittiness. I look for smarts and intellect the most. Looks, eh...

Most impressive car for a guy to be driving? Anything they're proud of. I don't really care what it is, I'm not that into cars that don't go around a track.

In a relationship, do you like to take the early lead?
No. I'm not so forward, I've been mostly just a shy girl when it comes to dating.
